DOG WITH HEAD IN JAR OF PICKLES PROVES TO BE PROWLER REPORTED

About the funniest thing that happened during the past week, reports Acting Sgt. L. G. Chauvaud of the local police station, was the experience of Officers J. C. Freeman and D. Baldwin when they checked a report of a prowler on a porch of a Pacific Beach home. Their terse report on the police records shows the following:

"Prowler on back porch now. Prowler was the dog with his head in a pickle jar. Broke jar off head with a hammer."

"As a matter of fact, we find a good many of reports of prowlers around premises lately to be dogs only," Chauvaud commented on the incident Thursday.

Army Engineers Approve Jetties For Mission Bay

Army engineers have approved ocean jetties for the mouth of Mission bay to check erosion in Ocean Beach and Mission Beach, reports City Manager Walter W. Cooper. The city council will consider in two weeks what the next step will be in this improvement. A report from the engineers, received by Cooper, states that they recommend construction of jetties on both sides of the mouth of the bay. The report added that the federal government would not be justified in using its own funds for the work.

San Diego city has been seeking to have the state park commission join with it in financing the jetty along the south side of the inlet. The city has appropriated $50,000 as its share of the work, the state has allocated $34,000 and its representatives have been quoted as stating they will expand that fund to $50,000.

The beach erosion board also recommended "stabilization" of the inlet, and prescribed as stabilizers jetties on each side of the channel. It estimated the cost of the 1475-foot south jetty at $140,000 and cost of the 1600-foot north jetty at $220,000.

The city recently interested the state park commission and Edward Hyatt, state engineer, in the Ocean Beach erosion problem, and reports from Hyatt still are awaited.

LOCAL OFFICER PRAISED FOR FIRST AID PROVIDED GIRL WITH BROKEN LEG

Donald D. Rice of the Ocean Beach police station was one of two officers given high praise for first aid he gave to a 2-year-old girl who suffered a broken leg about two weeks ago in Bayview Terrace. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Paine, wrote the police department, saying their daughter, Charlotte, "should be home soon thanks to the prompt and efficient first aid given by the two officers. Because of the clever way they bandaged both legs and put her on a board, she was able to wait the nine hours before she was taken care of by a doctor, in comparative comfort and very little damage to her leg. We are sure there are hundreds of others who have had to find out through a misfortune such as ours how fine and well-trained our police force really is."

"Love at First Sight? Yes," But Urges Second Look

To the question, "Do you believe in love at first sight?" Dr. Oliver Butterfield, director of the San Diego Association for Family Living, and a recognized national authority on the subject, answers "Yes, but it's well," he says "to take a second look." He was the speaker at Kiwanis meeting Tuesday evening on the subject "How to Make Marriage Civilized."

Speaking from experience and confidential talks with many married folks who have had troubles in their family living, as well as from data he had assembled in various scientific surveys of the subject, Dr. Butterfield emphasized that marriage to be successful must be based on reason as well as impulse, and that the proper education can go a long ways to provide a remedy for broken marriages and homes. Many colleges and high schools and ministers of the gospel have come to recognize the importance of a definite program of education in preparation for marriage and family living, he said, and reported that considerable success already has been attained by providing helpful literature and consultation with parents having married life problems.

Surveys reveal, he said, that seven out of 10 divorces are of couples who have come out of unhappy homes. Other main causes of the break-up of marriage, he listed as marrying on impulse, getting married while drunk, marriage where there is more than 10 years discrepancy between the ages of the couple and marrying too young. He urged, however, that parents stop making fun of puppy love.

The speaker was introduced by Ed Wickern, as program chairman. Visitors and guests at Tuesday's meeting included Dr. John Sorenson, Harry Masters, Nathan L. Rannells, Harry Polan and Forest Whedon.

The Chamber of Commerce was instructed to write a letter to Fred Simpson, city councilman, asking for immediate action on this matter. This letter to be signed by all the organizations in Ocean Beach.

JOBS AFTER THE WAR MUST COME FROM INDUSTRY

THERE IS A DEMAND THAT American industry be prepared to provide jobs for everyone who wants a job when the war is over. The idea as expressed by Washington bureaucrats is that if industry cannot do that kind of a job it will be an evidence of failure on the part of private enterprise and government must take over in the interest of those wanting jobs.

Just how far government is going in making such a result impossible for industry is well illustrated by the report of United States Steel for 1943.

In April of 1941 the government put a ceiling price on steel, and that price has not been changed. The government did not put a ceiling price on wages or materials. In 1941 wages in the steel plants averaged a fraction under 99½ cents an hour. In 1943 wages averaged a fraction under $1.16 an hour. Material prices were up in about the same proportion.

In 1943 the sales of the steel company amounted to $1,976,800,000. Of that $912,900,000 was paid for labor, just under 50 per cent. Another $126,600,000 went for taxes. The dividends paid to stockholders were the same as paid for a number of years, but the one item that tells the real story was the $3,400,000 the steel company was permitted to lay aside for that rainy day when the war is over.

That $3,400,000 the company was permitted to make and keep as a reserve would pay the operating costs of its plants for less than one day. That is the reserve with which to provide jobs for the 340,498 employees regardless of what the demand may be for steel.

During the year in which the company was permitted to accumulate a reserve of $3,400,000 with which to provide rainy day jobs, it paid to the unions under the check-off system, as dues and assessments for its employees a total of $2,300,000. The union is not expected to provide any rainy day jobs.

Industry keeps pace with the demand for more wages not by increased prices for its products, but by an increased "know-how" on the part of American management. In the case of steel that "know-how" supplied by management represents an increase in pounds of steel produced per man-hour from 29.72 in 1902 to 53.74 in 1943. For that "know-how" management, those with salaries of $10,000 a year or more, received less than 1 per cent of the total amount paid for labor.

Under existing conditions, with practically no reserve permitted upon which to draw, out of what is industry to finance those after-the-war, rainy-day jobs?

BURDEN ON ALL BECAUSE OF 'JOB-HOLDERS'

JUST ABOVE 64 MILLION people in the United States have jobs for which they are paid wages. Each 20 of those employed must dig down into their pockets to pay the salaries of a federal government civilian employee. Dividing the population into families of five each and it means that each eight families must pay the cost of supporting an extra family. Those extra for whom we must provide the food, clothing, shelter and spending money are largely employed by the more than 200 bureaus created since 1933. They are the bureaucrats whose job is that of regulating and regimenting the American people. They represent the burden Senator Byrd and his committee are attempting to remove from the shoulders of the American taxpayers. But the number continues to increase despite those efforts.

AUSTRALIAN WAR BILLS ARE LOWER THAN OURS

SINCE WE GOT into the war our national debt has increased, up to December 31, 1943, by 117 billion dollars. During approximately the same period Australia reduced its national debt by 106 million dollars. While our per capita debt stands at $1,207, an increase of $119 in a year, Australia reduced her per capita from $767 to $737. Australia is also at war. Australian soldiers are fighting beside Americans in the Southwest Pacific. Evidently the Aussies have learned the secret of conducting a war more economically than ourselves. Possibly they could give Senator Byrd and his economy committee some valuable tips.

THE AMERICAN NAVY in the Pacific has demonstrated that "island jumping" is not so slow a process as the Japs or ourselves had expected it to be.

IN SO FAR AS I REMEMBER my American history we have had three Presidents with a definite and continuing foreign policy. Washington proposed that we keep out of all the squabbles of Europe, stay at home and mind our own business only. Monroe warned all European nations to keep out of our hemisphere. Wilson proposed that we assist in regulating all the world's affairs.

Follow Land

Bolivia has an area of 266,500,000 acres, but in 1938 only 451,000 acres, or about one-fifth of 1 per cent of the total area of the nation, was under cultivation. Put in another way, this meant a little over one-tenth of an acre per inhabitant, while in the United States the ratio of cultivated land to population is approximately 2½ acres per inhabitant.

Pipelines Camouflaged

Huge quantities of precious gasoline that formerly were used as fuel in army tank trucks for transporting the fuel are now saved by the use of sectional pipelines which can be laid down in a hurry over a desert, through a jungle or across streams. In addition to being painted for protection against the elements they are also painted colors corresponding to the surfaces in which the pipes are laid to make them inconspicuous to the enemy.

Stored Safely

Grain to be used for feed for livestock usually can be kept for one year without serious damage from insects. The presence of a few weevils or bran bugs will not reduce its value as feed. However, grain held for sale later for milling should be kept entirely free of pests, for even a few will reduce its market value.

Use Semi-Dry Bread

Semi-dry bread is just the ticket for cubes to make crispy toppings on scalloped dishes, for bread puddings, or croutons for soup. Use whole slices for french toast, or top with gravy and a bit of meat and fry for a sandwich.

It's in the Bag

Save all scraps and slivers of toilet soap. When a half-cupful has been accumulated put them into a four-by-four bag made of old bath toweling. Sew a strap across the back, and presto, you have an ideal soap mitt to use in the shower. A similar bag made with laundry soap odds and ends is very useful for washing out bathtubs, sinks and washbowls.

Revolutionary Nurses

Though there was no organized nurse corps in 1776, women were contracted for and hired by the Continental army to care for the wounded and the sick. These courageous forerunners of our modern nurse received $25 and rations for a period of 10 weeks. The army nurse of today receives approximately $350 and other considerations for the same period of service.

Grate Peels

When using a recipe that calls for lemon or orange juice but not the peel, drop the peel into a snug jar and keep it in the refrigerator. Grate for extra flavor in puddings, frosting, cakes, cookies, or sugar toppings on coffee cakes.

Lake Bottom Fresh

For the six to seven months that Lake Michigan has uniform temperature in the vertical, currents and stirring cause turning over of the various layers with the consequent result that no areas are allowed to stagnate at the bottom of the lake proper.

Speeds Rotting

Pack the leaves and dried plant tops in flat piles and wet them if they are dry, to speed their decay. A little superphosphate fertilizer or manure mixed with the leaves also speeds the rotting. The top of the pile should be flat or slightly higher at the edges so that rain and snow will soak into the compost instead of running off.

Original Language

It is Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens) who is credited with more American words than any other source. Writing stories which used in print for the first time the fresh and original language of the Mississippi river men, Twain contributed thousands of words to the language and the dictionary. "Whoopee" is one of Twain's words, but so is "central" for a telephone operator.

"It's Up To You," Say The Yanks

Our Yanks are fighting—and dying—on the Normandy beachheads instead of talking. But if they were to stop fighting long enough to talk about this Fifth War Loan drive that started Monday here's about what the G. I. would say:

"Would you give me $100 to have me take your place in this critical invasion battle to insure freedom and comfort to you and yours as well as to my own relatives? Well, I've come here to do the fighting, to face the deadly cross fire of Hitler's artillery and machine guns, for you.

"Right now I'm not asking you to take my place here. I'm not even asking you to give the $100, small enough request which that would be. All I'm asking is that you loan the $100 to your country to make sure that I'll have the equipment and the ammunition with which to fight, without which I may not come back and without which I cannot win this war of all wars for you.

"Is a $100 loan too much to ask? It's up to you."

Progress Without Compulsion

It will be welcome news to hundreds of thousands of fathers and mothers whose sons are in service in tropical countries to read the statement of Rear Admiral Luther Sheldon, Jr., assistant chief of the Navy bureau of medicine and surgery, to the effect that "the danger of tropical diseases for our armed forces has been overcome to a large extent." The Navy medical officers feel that they "have the problem licked."

Admiral Sheldon said that he was not now at liberty to give details on the conquest of the tropical diseases, but to medical men who have heard his statement on the subject, it meant the equivalent of a major victory on the battlefield.

The progress that has been made in medicine, even during the present war, is far beyond the understanding of the average citizen who will reap the benefits. It is the result of the tireless efforts of individual doctors and institutions.

Make Your Appointment Now

With news that invasion has begun comes the realization that the battles will inflict great and terrible losses among our fighting men.

It is in our power to keep the casualty lists down—to restore to life, to battle, and eventually to home thousands of men who otherwise would die.

The miracle of blood plasma gives the men of this war twice the chance to survive as the wounded of battles where plasma was not available.

Through the San Diego Red Cross blood donor center at Columbia and Beech streets you can send your blood to the invasion fronts. The number to call is Franklin 7704.

Make your appointment now to donate one pint of blood—then keep that appointment—whether it is for today, tomorrow, or next month.

VEHICLE LICENSE FEES APPORTIONED TO SAN DIEGO COUNTY TOTAL $180,139.20

Gordon H. Garland, California director of motor vehicles, today announced an apportionment of $180,139.20 in vehicle license fees to San Diego county. The apportionments are based on a population of 240,377 for the county as shown by the 1940 census.

Vehicle license fees formerly were collected by the cities and counties as personal property taxes. Although the law requires that they be fixed upon the current market value of vehicles, the fees are now frozen at the 1943 level due to a special legislative act approved by Governor Earl Warren. Garland said they will be fixed at the same level in 1945 and that the vehicle owners will be relieved of the payment of several million dollars thereby.

Greatest Challenge Yet Says Gildred of 5th War Loan Drive

Philip L. Gildred, county chairman of the war finance committee, declared the Fifth war loan quota constitutes the greatest challenge that the people of this area have yet been called upon to meet.

"We are asked by our government to step up our war bond investments to keep pace with the greatly increased requirements of our armed forces as they have entered the critical phase of the struggle to knock Germany out of the war," he stated. "Our fighting men, now put to the supreme test, are depending upon the home front to produce the planes, guns and ships they need. We simply cannot let them down, especially since a little extra effort on our part will help to speed victory."

America — this is it!

He's doing his part . . . We must do our part!

For him the terrifying grand climax of the war is at hand.

The supreme military risk—bloody, costly in American lives.

Our boys know this. They don't have to read the heart-rending headlines or casualty lists to know what is expected of them.

They are in it.

But they are not flinching . . . not holding back.

They will see the grim venture through to the bitter, victorious end.

And if, for your boy, or some boy you know, the price of Victory is death, you can be absolutely certain that he did his part courageously . . . for the cause of Freedom.

For us, too, the terrifying grand climax of the war is at hand.

This supreme, desperate call for American dollars—16 billions of them—is to enable our fighting men to carry through the grim, bloody assault to a successful conclusion and Victory.

Not just American dollars—but the dollars in your pocket—in your savings account.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allied Gains Mark Italy Battle; Plan Four-Power Peace Meeting; 5,000,000 U. S. Men Overseas

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

EUROPE:

Allied Progress

Allied troops cracked the last German defense line on the western end of the front below Rome as enemy forces completed their withdrawal to the east, and the glittering dome of St. Peter's came first into view of fighting U. S. doughboys, wading through hails of Nazi fire.

As Allied forces closed on the Eternal City and the enemy fell back, U. S. and British bombers continued their invasion bombardment of western Europe, and Russian troops in the east withstood a strong Nazi assault designed to upset their alignment for their scheduled big push.

By pulling back the bulk of his 10th army which opposed the Allied onslaught in the Cassino area, Nazi Marshal Kesselring managed to save them from complete annihilation, but U. S. and British forces exacted a heavy toll in the desperate, rearguard fighting, and their battle-planes ranged along the whole line of enemy retreat, shooting up marching columns and vehicles.

As the battle-clouds rumbled over Rome, Pope Pius XII appealed against the principle of total victory, declaring: total victory or complete annihilation ". . . works as a stimulant for prolongation of the war, even with those who . . . would be inclined to a reasonable peace."

Over There

With 3,657,000 U. S. army men overseas, Secretary of War Henry Stimson declared that they are ". . . poised to strike victory winning blows against Germany and Japan by land, sea and air."

At the same time, the navy revealed that it had 1,566,000 men afloat or on foreign duty, with 900,000 more in transit or in training for combat service.

The army's 3,657,000 men overseas represented 47 per cent of total strength, and this would be boosted to 5,000,000 men, or two-thirds of total strength, by the end of 1944, Secretary Stimson said.

Declaring that disposition of troops overseas was in conformance with plans of the high command, Secretary Stimson said early transport of forces was to plug holes in the Allies' tottering lines, and later shipments were to crack the Axis' outer defenses for the grand assault, for which preparations long have been under way.

GOVERNORS:

State Program

Meeting in Hershey, Pa., the nation's governors called upon the federal government to formulate a postwar policy on public works which might possibly fit into their own extensive plans for such projects.

In addition, the governors declared for:

1. The individual states continued administration of unemployment insurance in the estimation of their probable postwar unemployment and the solvency of their insurance funds, the provision for adequate reserves, and development of plans for quick payments;

2. Future convocation of a federal-state tax parley to overhaul the nation's entire tax structure and provide each governmental division with sufficient funds for operation;

3. Postponement in the formulation of a postwar military policy and army until the war's end offers an opportunity to judge the extent of our responsibilities. Retention of the national guards as provided in the act of 1916.

FOREIGN POLICY:

F. D. R.'s Stand

Closely paralleling the Republican party's celebrated Mackinac Island declaration on foreign policy, President Roosevelt declared for maintenance of U. S. sovereignty or self-determination in the activities of any postwar organization to secure peace.

Said Arch-Nationalist Gerald Nye (N. D.): "It is only too apparent in the light of his statement, that the door has been opened for Roosevelt to become the No. 1 nationalist or isolationist in the campaign next fall if the Republicans adopt a platform tying them to internationalism. . . ."

President Roosevelt's declaration came during the course of a press conference, in which he envisaged an international organization of nations cooperating freely and closely in the preservation of peace to prevent future aggression.

New Procedure

President Roosevelt made his statement shortly after Secretary of State Cordell Hull had issued invitations to Great Britain, Russia and China to participate in discussions of forming a postwar peace organization following consultations with members of the senate's foreign relations committee.

By conferring with the senators, the administration sought to eliminate partisanship from the formulation of postwar foreign policy, and, also, avoid Pres. Woodrow Wilson's mistake of seeking senatorial sanction for the World War I Peace Treaty without previously consulting the chamber on its provisions during its composition.

In Secretary Hull's talks with the senators, it was revealed that some of them objected to formal commitment to any organization of enforcing postwar peace until the U. S. was apprized of the nature of the final settlement.

PACIFIC:

Bloody Episode

Bloody as any of the fighting in the South Pacific was the U. S. thrust against the enemy airfield on Biak island off Dutch New Guinea, with reinforcements called in to aid in the suppression of the stubborn foe.

With access to the airfield along a roadway below a commanding ridge doughboys found themselves under sight of entrenched enemy snipers in the brush above, and when they climbed to the level of the airdrome, they encountered formations of Japanese tanks.

Under cover of the big guns of the 7th naval fleet, however, reinforcements were landed, and doughboys again pressed on the airfield, capture of which would assure the U. S. of another link in the chain of air bases being established in the northwestern New Guinea area for cover for the grand assault on the Philippines or Indies.

PRICE CONTROL:

Parity Problem

Extension of the OPA for 18 months appeared certain only after a bitter fight over Sen. John Bankhead's amendment, calling for readjustment of textile prices to reflect parity returns on cotton to farmers.

Headed by Sen. Robert Wagner (N. Y.), opponents of the Bankhead amendment claimed that it would lead to similar demands by other segments of industry, thus increasing the general price level, giving rise to pressure for higher wages, and, in all, destroying the economic stabilization of the last few years.

In advocating approval of the amendment, its supporters pointed out that the original stabilization act directed that ceilings were to reflect parity prices for farm commodities. Supporters also contended that readjustment of prices of cheap textiles would lead to the greater production of such goods, thus directly benefitting low income groups now compelled to purchase higher quality material.

War-Planes

American aircraft factories are now turning out far more war planes than both Germany and Japan combined, latest reports show. The United States is now producing at the rate of 100,000 planes a year, as compared with 21,600 for Germany and 14,000 for Japan.

The British empire and the United States together have made about 300,000 planes since Great Britain entered the war, while the Axis reportedly produced 151,000 in the same period.

MISCELLANY

WHEEL TRACTORS: During the week ending May 27, production of farm-type wheel tractors reached the highest point yet attained. In that week 6,098 units were made, the War Production board reports. Average for the preceding five weeks had been 5,906 tractors. Total made in 11 months since the start of the farm year on July 1, 1943, is about 200,000 machines.

With Ernie Pyle at the Front

Tank-Destroyer Unit Is Very Proud of Its Guns

Combat Team Confident; Differs Little From Battle-Tried Outfit

By Ernie Pyle

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND.—I went out the other day with a tank-destroyer unit. They have been over here long enough to form an opinion of English weather but you can't print it in a nice newspaper like this.

It was the first time in ages I had been with a combat outfit which had not yet been in battle. There isn't so much difference as you might think. The really noticeable difference is their eagerness to "get a crack at the Jerries." After they have been cracking at them a few months they'll be just as eager to let somebody else have a turn at it.

Ernie Pyle

But outside of that they talk and act about the same as men who have been in combat. They cuss a lot, razz each other about their home states, complain about the food, take great pride in their guns, and talk about how they wish they were home, just as though they had been away for years.

This unit has been training together for nearly two years. They don't yet realize what a terrific advantage that gives them, but they will realize it as soon as they are in battle.

They are a vast team of firepower composed of dozens of little teams, each one centering around one gun. They have done it so long they know automatically what to do. They all know every man on the team and they know his personality and how he will react. They have faith in each other. Only those who have fought know what confidence that produces.

A typical gun commander is Sergt. Dick Showalter, (535 S. Gharker St.) Muncie, Ind. I have a special reason for mentioning him, For while I was talking with a group of soldiers he came up and introduced himself and said:

"I married a girl from your home town."

Now things like that are always happening to me, except that nine times out of ten the people are mixed up. People will come up and say, "Don't you remember me? I used to deliver papers at your house." And it will turn out they lived in a town I had never heard of, and were thinking of two other fellows.

When Sergeant Showalter said he had married a girl from my home town I slightly arched my handsome eyebrows and said, "Yes?"

"Yes," he said. "I married Edna Kuhns."

"Why," I said, "I was raised with the Kuhns kids. They lived just across the fence from our farm. I've known them all my life."

"That's what I said," said Sergeant Showalter. And then we left the crowd and sat on the grass, leaning against a rock.

Sergeant Showalter worked in factories before the war. He has been commander of his gun for more than a year and a half. He is a small fellow, quiet, serious, conscientious, and extremely proud of his crew and of the way they take their responsibility.

One of Showalter's best buddies in his crew is Pfc. Bob Cartwright of Daytona Beach, Fla. He is a cannoneer—a small, reddish, good-natured fellow.

When we met I said, "What's that you've got in your mouth?"

He grinned and said, "Chawin' tobacco." Which was just what I thought it was.

He manages to keep well stocked by trading stuff with boys who don't chew. Bob is very young. He didn't know much when he came into the army, but Showalter says he's the best there is now.

As I said the boys are very proud of their guns. They say they've had fine training and lots of practice on moving targets. They say that on direct fire they can hit a moving tank at about a mile and almost never miss. They're anxious to get at it and get it over with and get back home.

They know it won't be easy on the other side. They're living rough now but they know it will be lots rougher pretty soon.

As they say, the chow is bad here compared to what it was in America, but they don't complain too much because they know it's going to get worse.

They know they'll be on C and K rations, and they've had experience with them on maneuvers. But when I spoke of our best ration—the 10-in-1 field ration—they had never heard of it.

They have been working hard since they hit England. They've made long night trips and done a lot of practice firing and sometimes they have to work as late as 10 o'clock at night.

When I saw them they were making preparations for moving overseas. It takes a lot of work to get your equipment ready for an amphibious move. They've worked so hard they haven't had time to get bored. There are some American outfits that have been here for two years without action, and there are Canadians who have been marching up and down for four years. How they've kept from going nuts is beyond me.

The commander of the tank-destroyer battalion I have been visiting is Lieut. Col. Joseph Deeley of Sheboygan Falls, Wis.. He used to run a wool-carding mill there. I like his attitude toward things.

When I first showed up he was perfectly courteous but he made plenty sure I had proper credentials and what not. As he said, they have had plenty of security preached into them back home, and this indeed is a critical period and he isn't taking any chances.

But once he had assured himself I was all right he called in his sergeants and told them to go around and tell their men they were perfectly free to show me any and all equipment they had and talk to me as freely as they wanted to.

As I told him later I don't think he need have bothered. For these boys, approaching war for the first time, pumped me so thoroughly on what war is like that I hardly got a chance to ask any questions of them. Maybe I'll have to write some security regulations of my own just out of self-protection. Who the devil is reporting this war, anyway?

One company commander, Capt. Charles Harding, of Olmsted Falls, near Cleveland, had just had a letter from home telling him to keep an eye out for me. He figured that in a war this big our paths would never cross, but they did.

Another Ohioan came up and introduced himself. This was Pfc. James Francis McClory of (6711 Guthrie street) Cleveland. McClory is what is aptly known in the battalion as a "character." He used to be a prize fighter. Being in the horny-handed world of pugilists, he has a great affinity for apes. There's an almost human ape at the zoo in a nearby city which McClory goes to see every time he gets a pass. He calls him "Alfred the Ape," and says he sure wishes he could take him back to Cleveland.

McClory used to work for the Cleveland Welding company, which made bicycles. When I asked him what he did he said, "Oh, I was just a hod knocker."

You can kid lots with McClory. When I went to write down his name I put "Sergeant" in front of it, and he said, "No no. I'd never get to be a sergeant if the war lasted 50 years."

So I said, "Well, 'Corporal' then." But he said, "No, I ain't even got sense enough to be a corporal."

So I said, "Well, we simply can't have you a private. What would the McCloys of the world think with you only a private?"

So we compromised and made him a pfc.

McClory is one of those guys who are good for the morale of an outfit. He is always doing or saying something funny. And he is a good soldier. He is one of the kind who are fanatically loyal.

He has a great affection for his company commander, Capt. John Jay Kennedy of (15 Fawndale road) Roslindale, Mass. Once when some gasoline caught fire McClory threw himself on the captain and knocked him out of the way, saving him from serious injury. Another time, when Captain Kennedy's mother was very ill, McClory took the last money he had and telegraphed home to his own parish to have a mass said for the captain's mother.

Life With the Tank Destroyer Units

English dogs have begun to attach themselves to the tank-destroyer boys, as they do to any and all camps of soldiers. These boys haven't actually adopted any of them as individual pets, because they can't take them along to the Continent. They say that in the States they had a number of pigs for pets. In that case you could have your pet and eat it too.

The top commanders who have toiled and slaved for months planning the second front have been under a man-killing strain of work and responsibility.

Thousands of men of high rank have labored endlessly. They are up early, they work all day, and after supper they go back to work far into the night. Seldom can you get one of them to take a day off.

DISTRICT No. 7
Bayview 6101

Well, today starts the summer vacation for the school children. We still have a number of circulars "Plans for children's activities during the summer vacation." This circular shows the various kinds of recreation planned for the children through-out San Diego during their vacation. Your block leader has these circulars. Call upon her for a copy.

At our local monthly meeting last Monday afternoon, Mrs. Martha MacIntosh, principal of the Ocean Beach school, was our guest speaker and she spoke on all the recreational facilities offered here at our own Ocean Beach school. Every day, except Sunday, from 9 until 1 p.m. the school playgrounds will be supervised and various team games and other individual games will be held. Also there may be a class in handcraft.

With regard to the paper salvage, save your newspapers and other waste paper, as we understand that from time to time regular sidewalk pick-up will be made and as soon as the date is set for our postal zone No. 7, we will announce same in this column.

We acknowledge receipt of four pairs of slippers and a number of crossword puzzles from Mrs. Maiser of Section "C."

A number of our women have now received their Service ribbons. We still have a few ribbons for presentation to the ladies who earned them and who were unable to attend our meeting last Monday. If those women will come to our next monthly meeting, we will be pleased to present the ribbons to them.

Of course we all know the 5th War Loan drive is now on. "Chute the Works"—They give their lives — you lend your money. Buy more bonds.

SAVES WASHING TIME!

SOAKING clothes in just enough water to cover, saves washing time as well as soap.* For best results, allow clothes to soak for several hours or over-night.

Hot water is also a "must" for faster, easier washing. Your gas water heater will provide a dependable supply of fresh, hot water if you will follow these easy suggestions:

1. Keep the thermostat set at 140 degrees Fahrenheit. This temperature is adequate for household needs and provides maximum heater efficiency.

2. Drain the water heater frequently to remove the sediment and help prevent unnecessary corrosion.

3. Don't waste hot water. See that faucets are turned off tight --- that there is no drip.

Other timely suggestions that will speed up wash day are found in a special free booklet, "Tub Talk" with a complete stain removal chart. Your nearest office of the San Diego Gas & Electric Company has a free copy for you.

IT'S A BIG BARREL—
but we're scraping bottom!

Since the National Defense program began in 1940, the Bell System telephones in service have increased by over 4½ million.

Normally we have reserve facilities but in many districts, that reserve is now about used up, as materials and manufacturing have been devoted to the war for more than two years. This means there may be a delay in establishing or moving service for you.

As we scrape the bottom of the barrel, we're trying hard to make what we have do the best possible job by—

- Stretching switchboards to make room for more lines and calls.
- Reconditioning all serviceable facilities and putting them to use.

We don't want you put to any more inconvenience than we can help, and we want you to understand the wartime conditions restricting telephone service.

Nobody likes to stand in line, but it's different when the line forms behind our fighting men.

Do Day - - Not Don't Day

(A Guest Editorial)

Well, people are packing up and going home.

"To heck with California and its big, red geraniums." AND its war jobs.

We got our'n.

"D-Day" is here, and that's the end of the war.

Public psychology would have a flat tire—if it had a tire.

"What's the use of cracking up for another war bond, if 'D-Day' is here? We've 'gottem' licked. Let's put our loot in a basket and go home."

What is the cause of this abrupt cessation of interest in the war? And, more, in production of war materials?

The answer, I think, (I'd KNOW if I were a paid commentator) POST-WAR PROGRAMS. And the publicity given to every rocking-chair gramma who has ever read Alice in Wonderland.

There used to be a saying—now obsolete—"Catch your rabbit before you skin it."

Rabbits are out, these days. It's so simple. How swell everything would be if everything were entirely different from what is.

And if anybody in the world knew what was going to happen next.

It is fine to assume that we are going to win these wars, because we are going to win them. At the cost of . . . who can say what the cost will be?

The tens of thousands of young men who are going to die in the faith of a freedom are not assuming that the war is over.

"D-Day" is the beginning, not the end.

Honesty of thought should compel even our great thinkers-up-of-post-war-problems to shut up. They mean well, but . . .

The Fifth War Loan drive has been launched, and within a week after the Great Invasion began.

There are four million American boys fighting for America.

THEY don't think that "D-Day" means "Don't Day."

To them it means DO-DAY.

DO-DAY means life lost valiantly.

DON'T-DAY says the war is over . . . let's quit.

A war bond may bring a boy back, or it may mean a chunk of hell for the Nazis or Japs. It's good either way.

BUT DON'T THINK THE WAR IS OVER.
THIS IS DO-DAY,
NOT DON'T DAY.

Federal Car Tax Stamps Now On Sale To Motorists

Automobiles in use on July and thereafter must display th $5 federal motor vehicle tax stamp in the lower right-hand corner of the windshield, the Automobile Club of Southern California warns. This stamp is now on sale at headquarters and all district offices of the club, in all post offices, and at U. S. Internal Revenue Department office.

Southland motorists have from now until the end of June to purchase the stamp. Thereafter, internal revenue officials will launch an exhaustive campaign to ascertain that car owners have complied with the federal automobile tax law.

Assessment for failure to purchase the federal stamp before July 1, according to government officials, will be $5 in addition to the purchase price of the stamp itself.

However, federal deputies making the compliance check after July 1 will give motorists opportunity to show proof of having purchased the stamp before citing them into internal revenue offices.

ONLY ONE DAY IN MAY OF 100 PER CENT SUN

May had only one day of 100 per cent sunshine, reports U. S. Weather Observer Dean Blake in his summary of San Diego weather for the past month. May also was warmer and drier than usual, he said.

The persistent high cloudiness caused the percentage of possible sunshine to drop to 56, whereas the normal May percentage is 60, Blake said.

Average temperature was 62.8 degrees, against the normal May mark of 61.8, while rainfall totaled only .22 of an inch against a normal of .35. Hottest May day was the 4th, with a top of 84 degrees, and the month's lowest temperature was 51 degrees, reached on May 19.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of a Flying Fortress, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men were killed while fleeing for shelter, and Old 99, with many other Forts, was demolished on the ground. After escaping to Australia, what is left of their squadron flies to Java, where they go on many missions over the Philippines, and finally defend Java itself. Java falls to the Japs and the U. S. fliers evacuate to Australia to carry on the war from there. They land on Broome field, which is wrecked by Japs shortly after, but escape to Melbourne. Kurtz becomes pilot of "The Swoose," the air force general's plane.

CHAPTER XXI

"In Australia, the Air Force had to build from the ground up. Before General MacArthur arrived from the Philippines we had located and were building our advance and supply bases all over North Australia from Darwin to Townsville. American engineers were pouring in, and General Brett put them to work. We were also improving Moresby, our problem child, and the Air Force staff had laid down its strategical plan for clearing Australia's northeast shoulder of the threat of Jap air power so that when we had the necessary men and equipment, we could head back into the Philippines.

"The old 19th Bombardment Group was back in business now in North Australia, and beginning in April of that year we were pounding the Jap base at Rabaul in New Britain several times a week.

"Meanwhile the Philippines were tottering. Bataan had fallen; Corregidor seemed about to go; and we were working feverishly to rescue desperately needed Air Force personnel from Del Monte Field on Mindanao. Al Mueller, who was now flying a transport, told me of his last trip in. He said the place looked so shaky he was scared even to be looking that way now. It was a seventeen - hundred - mile flight, and there was a chance that there might not be enough gas left at Del Monte to get him back to Australia. But the pilots, navigators, and ground crews still on Mindanao were worth their weight in gold to us, so Al started out.

"He got right over Del Monte Field. Things looked quiet on the ground, and he was circling, waiting for the signal to come on in, which for some reason seemed delayed. Circling, Al couldn't understand this until from Australia, seventeen hundred miles away, crackles a radio message telling him under no circumstances to land. Corregidor and Mindanao had surrendered to the Japanese while he had been en route.

"There he was, eight hours from home base and with only a few hours' gas left. But luckily he'd provided against this before he left. He'd told the Navy that if the Philippines caved while he was in the air and he couldn't refuel at Mindanao, he'd beach his plane on a little jungle island, and he showed it to them on the map, so they could pick him up if they could get through.

"Now he headed for this island, looked its beach over, and set her down in the surf. The rocks in a few seconds made junk of his big four-motored Liberator.

"Then, according to Al, the days seemed like years, although only five of them passed before a submarine periscope popped up in the cove and carefully scanned the horizon for Jap planes before the craft surfaced to take him and his crew aboard.

"During March the hot spot was Darwin, which the Aussies called the Coventry of Australia because the Japanese had come over on February nineteenth and not only flattened its little town of four thousand but on the airfield wiped out an American fighter group en route to the Java war.

"At that time it was only a little Australian field with almost no anti-aircraft. The RAAF boys were good lads, trying hard but getting nowhere, lacking both training and equipment.

"The American fighter group perched on that field, which 'Slugger' Pell was leading toward Java, had no warning until they heard the sound of the Jap motors. Slugger wanted to save his planes if he could, so instead of diving for the foxholes (the Japs were already strafing) he tried desperately to get his boys off.

"Slugger was shot down at 50 feet while his landing gear was still retracting, and before he'd had time to drop his belly tank. He tried to bail out, but of course he was too low. A previous squadron had actually managed to get into the air, but Slugger's were all either shot down on the take-off or killed in their cockpits before they cleared the runway, or else strafed and set afire while they were taxiing into position. It had been a field day for the Zeros.

"Word now came through that a force of ten Jap bombers and three fighters was on its way to Darwin. It was what Squeeze had been waiting for. He hit them far out at sea. Squeeze has a clever tactical idea which I shouldn't describe in detail. But as the Japs approached their target, our patrols pulled the rest of the American fighter strength off the ground. While one of our flights chased off the accompanying Zeros, the rest of the boys were picking off Jap bombers, which were sliding out of formation and going down trailing smoke. They all had to turn off before reaching the target, dump their bombs in the sea, and head back for their base at Kupang on Timor Island—one of the steppingstones to Java they'd taken away from us. But Squeeze and his gang followed them out to sea, and shot down every one of the ten bombers. Our boys returned without a man wounded or a plane scratched.

" 'You know,' said Squeeze, 'if we don't look out, we're going to make the air a safe place for Americans!'

"And after all those months of defeat, we were almost afraid to believe it. But two days later the Japs came back from Kupang with a real force—thirty-three bombers protected by eleven fighters. Again we were ready. It was a beautiful day, the sky clear as a bell, and again Squeeze tore into the whole Jap V formation far at sea. He attacked in elements, and each time he hit, another Mitsubishi would go spinning down in smoke, or else would sag below the V with engine trouble, lagging so that the next American element could pick him off. We found Jap bombers are lightly constructed, and can't soak up much punishment from our heavy .50-caliber guns—can't take the pounding our Forts can. Meanwhile the second American flight was taking care of the eleven escorting Zeros. The boys had paired off and were whirling over and over in their squirrel cages, a Jap and an American to each cage, while the first flight kept up the heavy cleaver work—chopping into that bomber V from behind, or sometimes going out ahead of it to turn and come in for a bust on its nose. They were forcing it lower—when they'd peel off and come in for a pass, it was fun watching both motors light up.

"A good many Jap bombers got over the target, but you couldn't call it a bomb run. Most of their bombs went wild, as always happens in a disrupted attack, and many others salvoed their bombs in the desert so they could run away. But those which did get over Darwin ran into Bofors ack-ack fire. The battery was operated by an old Crete gang of Aussies—the toughest hombres in the business—and the American P-40's had pushed the Jap bombers so low that the ack-ack could really rip into them. They were between that cleaver in the air and a buzz saw on the ground. Two or three Jap bombers dribbled right down onto the field, whole wings shot off or else blown into confetti. The Japs tried to use their chutes from the burning bombers—which should explode the fairy tale that Japs are too fanatical to use chutes—yet even they caught fire.

"Most of the first Jap bomber flight got over Darwin, but only part of the second, while the third jettisoned its bombs and ran like hell for Kupang.

"You see the estimated range of a Zero using belly tanks is about twelve hundred miles. It's five hundred and ten miles from Kupang to Darwin, and to go and return is a thousand and twenty miles. That leaves a tiny safety margin that is more than used up if the Zero has to do any fighting en route.

"Also by first hitting the Japs far out at sea, Squeeze forced them to drop their belly tanks—they can't fight while carrying them—and begin using their precious wing-tank gas long before they got to the target.

"All through the Australian war our fighters must have knocked off hundreds of Zeros which we've never claimed. We fight them until their gas is almost gone, and when they finally break away and start for home, they slide quietly into the sea with dry tanks.

"Those fighters at Darwin are a great gang of kids, and they've invented their own service uniform, which might not pass parade inspection back here. It consists of a long duck-billed hunter's cap, usually red, plus a pair of white cotton shorts and nothing much else. They don't like clothes because of the fire hazard—cloth soaks up spurting gasoline, which will drop off naked flesh. They won't wear ordinary shoes. This started when one of them had to bail out in the desert back of Darwin and when his chute cracked open, the jerk flipped his shoes off. He had to walk barefoot for days over the Australian desert. Now they wear tennis shoes or cowboy boots, which won't flip off. This costume includes a belt, to which is attached a jungle kit on one side and a .45 on the other. The .45 they keep covered with cellophane candy-bar wrappers so it won't rust. They look more like pirates than pilots, and so did the ones at Moresby.

"When General Brett put Buzz in charge of the Moresby-Townsville fighters, he didn't issue an order for Buzz to stay on the ground at his desk in Pursuit Interceptor Command Headquarters at Townsville, but in a nice way he unofficially requested it.

"But Buzz was itching at the paper work. He was a fighter, not a desk man. And at Moresby he had new youngsters just in from the States. Their morale was low. They'd been having an awful time with the weather, and also the Japs had been coming in and shooting up the place, catching these kids in the air and picking off too many. They needed someone to show them how to handle a P-39 Airacobra against the Zero—both planes have their points.

"So one day when he's up 'inspecting' Moresby—he spent most of his time there—without any formality Buzz steps into a P-39 and leads them. They were all agog. They've heard of the Great Wagner, but they aren't sure the stories of what he'd done in the Philippines mightn't be a myth.

"He led twelve of them out above New Guinea, over the Owen Stanley range, on a mission in the direction of the big Jap base at Lae, from which they were returning over the ocean when they ran into a Japanese trap.

"The Japs had a flight of Zeros circling a spot which our boys must pass on their homeward leg. Buzz said it was partly his fault for not having told his gang of twelve to refrain from combat on this homeward leg, because they needed all their gas to get back, while the Japs were freshly fueled from a near-by base.

"But when the two end men on the flight saw the Japs, they peeled off, and Buzz saw he'd have trouble holding the rest, so he gave the signal over the phones to go on in. Buzz said it was a lovely battle—the whole argument rolled thirty miles up the beach and then thirty miles back again, like a big tumbleweed on the prairie. Buzz shot down three Japs himself, and his wing men two—a total of five Japs for the day. We gave three planes to get them (one was forced down gasless), but we didn't lose a pilot on that flight.

"That did the business for those green, scared kids. When they saw Buzz's gunsights trained on a Zero, watched his .50-caliber chewing it up right in front of them, they realized it could be done, and, more important, they saw they had a leader—which was all they needed to put them back in business.

"That night, sitting with me under the mosquito-netting canopy we'd thrown over the wing of the Swoose, was the first time I saw Buzz really worried. Because when General Brett found out about this, what would he say? Buzz was worried that the General would not only request him to stay on the ground, he'd make it an order in writing, and then the fun would be over.

"Buzz was twenty-six years old, and he hadn't gone up just to hang three more on his record, but because he really loved it. But he said in the future he thought rather than risk an order grounding him, he'd stay out of combat with Zeros and confine his activities to developing mast - high bombing attacks against transports. He thought his kids should all be trained to do it, and he'd done a lot himself. You come in low and horizontal in a pursuit, and just before you're on her you release your little wing bomb so that it slaps right against the transport's side at the water line. Then quick you pull up out of the antiaircraft fire.

"We talked a lot that night. He had a fast mind, and was doing a lot of sound thinking both on tactics and about our fighters. He said in a way he wanted to get back home for a while. I'd turned down a ticket home once, and he'd turned it down twice, but now he had a reason for returning.

It's Victory Canning Time Again!
(See Recipes Below)

Can What You Can

Markets are becoming green dotted with new vegetables like asparagus, spinach and peas. There are bits of bright red too, a welcome sight, those strawberries, raspberries and cherries.

They're good fresh, so use them in every way you can. But plan to put up some of the best produce in jars. Jams and jellies will come in mighty handy when you're point conscious about butter next winter. Jars of vegetables will put nutrition into those winter meals when canned food points are at a premium.

There's one rule about canning that you'd best remember when you put up those jars of fruits and vegetables: "Two hours from garden to kettle." That means using only foods at the peak of condition, for you get out of your can only what you put into it.

If vegetables turn brown in their jars and look unattractive as compared with the fresh produce, it's probably because of overprocessing (overcooking) or lack of fresh vegetables when you started canning.

When you overcook those bright red berries, they can't possibly be fresh looking or taste like a reasonable facsimile of the original product. Follow directions and cook just long enough, and the result will be well worth the effort.

Save Used Fats!

Now's a good time to put up conserve like grandmother used to make. This contains a mixture of fruits popular now:

Strawberry-Rhubarb Conserve.
(Makes about 10 glasses)

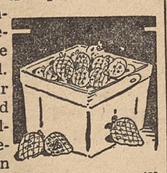
1 quart prepared strawberries
1 quart prepared rhubarb
6 cups sugar

Wash and hull strawberries. Wash rhubarb and cut into ½-inch pieces. Mix strawberries, rhubarb and sugar. Cook mixture slowly until it is thick and clear. Pour into hot, sterile glasses.

Three-Fruit Preserves.

2 pints raspberries
2 pints strawberries
1 to 1½ pounds cherries
Equal amount of sugar by weight, of all fruits

Combine all ingredients and boil 25 minutes. Add ½ cup lemon juice and boil 2 minutes longer. Remove from fire and allow to cool. When cool, pour into sterilized jars and seal. Although the preserves look thin when you finish cooking, they will thicken upon standing.



Lynn Says

Popular Observations: You like certain foods, but you'll like them better if you don't let them fall into a rut. Instead of serving these favorites the same way all the time, try these variations:

When the milk sours, use it in muffins. It spells extra lightness.

Rice pudding is good with cream, but better still with chilled fruits in season—cherries, strawberries, raspberries and peaches.

Spread lamb or ham patties with mustard before frying or broiling—you'll get good results.

Orange juice and grated orange rind in place of milk in baking powder biscuits is something to cheer about.

Good accompaniment with fish: Tiny beet cubes mixed with sour cream.

Tomatoes stuffed with cucumbers, cottage cheese and sour cream is something new by way of a tomato surprise.

Sunshine Strawberry Preserves.

8 cups strawberries
9 cups sugar
Juice of 1 lemon

Wash berries and put into preserving kettle with alternate layer of sugar. Add lemon juice and heat slowly to boiling. Boil gently 10 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and set in sun for three days. Seal with paraffin. While in the sun, a sheet of glass should be placed over jars to keep out foreign matter.

Raspberry-Cherry Conserve.

3 cups cherries
3 cups red raspberries
4½ cups sugar

Cook cherries in very little water until skins are tender. Add raspberries and sugar. Cook until thick and clear. Pour into sterilized jars and seal while hot.

Commercial pectin shortens the jelly-making process considerably and preserves the fresh fruit color and flavor in the finished product.

Ripe Sour Cherry and Currant Jelly.

4½ cups juice
7 cups sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, stem but do not pit and crush about 1½ quarts fully ripe cherries. Crush about 1¼ quarts fully ripe currants. Combine fruits; add ¾ cup water, bring to a boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly bag and squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into a large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over the hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full, rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly. Paraffin while hot.

Early spring vegetables are coming out in the markets and in the gardens. They should be canned as soon as they are best, so that you will have the best possible results. Since pressure cookers are unrationed this year, every homemaker should be able to get one for herself or the use of one as they are the best method for processing non-acid vegetables:

Spinach.

Wash carefully and precook with just the water clinging to the leaves until wilted. Pack into clean, sterile jars, being careful not to press too tightly. Add 1 teaspoon salt to each quart. Fill to within ½ inch of top with boiling water. Put on cap, using manufacturers' directions and process 60 minutes at 10 pounds pressure or 3 hours in boiling water bath.

Asparagus.

Wash thoroughly, removing scales from stalk. Cut in jar lengths. Tie in bundles, place tips up in boiling water to cover lower tough portions. Cover vessel tightly. Precook 3 minutes. Drain, pack into clean, sterile jars, tips up. Add ½ teaspoon salt to each pint jar and fill with water to within ½ inch of top. Process 40 minutes at 10 pounds pressure, or 3 hours in hot water bath.

Green Peas.

Shell and grade peas, using only young, tender ones. Precook three to five minutes. Pack loosely in clean sterile jars to within 1 inch of top, adding ½ teaspoon salt to each pint jar. Fill with water in which peas were precooked to within 1 inch of top. Process 60 minutes at 10 pounds pressure or 3 hours in boiling water bath.

It's easier than you'd think—and you've then got gifts that really are gifts! Seven-eighths of a yard of rayon silk or satin, a bit of contrasting color for the appliques, a spool of good silk thread, a fine needle for the hand-rolled hems—and you have de luxe panties made at infinitely small cost!

'John Doe' Warrants

When a warrant is issued for the arrest of a person whose name is not known, the magistrate is required to fill in the name space with an adequate description of the wanted man instead of leaving it blank or substituting the name of "John Doe" temporarily, says Collier's.

If the justice fails to follow this requirement, he violates his oath of office and the warrant is invalid and worthless.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Synthetic inner tubes need lubrication before being inserted in a casing. Partially inflate the tube and use ordinary pure soapsuds as a lubricant in the absence of a special tube lubrication preparation. Dry synthetic tubes do not "slide" in the tire and unless lubricated may not adjust themselves properly.

Proponents of the continuance of our synthetic rubber insurance policy after the war hold that jungle growth on the rubber plantations and the probability of the Japs wrecking the plantation equipment may mean a loss of two years before normal levels of rubber production can be realized.
